

Are you a young person with experience of the care system?

Interested in Lifelong Links?

Lifelong Links helps find and bring together people who care about you. This can be people you know well, people you have not seen for a while (like a former teacher or foster carer) and even relatives who you may not have met yet.

An independent Lifelong Links coordinator will work directly with you. They will ask you who you would like to get in touch with and who from your past was important to you. The coordinator will then use a variety of searching techniques to try and find them.

A Lifelong Links family group conference will then be held where everyone is brought together:

- To talk about what you want & need.
- For you, your family and friends to plan how they will support you.
- To involve your social worker in agreeing the Lifelong Links plan.

Lifelong Links is led by Family Rights Group in partnership with local authorities in England & Scotland.
